Well, here we are, celebrating of achievement in making our world a safer place by making sure that individuals, politicians and corporates are kept safe.

There is no doubt that data collecting and counter terrorism is high stake for IBSSA. But so is our promotion of individual self-preservation. It is a fact that a government can only do so much to make people physically safe. With IBSSA teaching people how to protect their families and employees, we are helping the state to do better. The message, it seems, is being clearly understood by many strata of society, and that is as it should be.

May I say, on behalf of the Board of Directors, thank you to all those members and friends who have helped made IBSSA what it is today. You may be sure that your help, support and commitment has been to us invaluable and we are looking forward to working with you for the next ten years."

With IBSSA's thanks,

HRH Prince Michael of Albany

Many world famous experts are teaching in the IBSSA system, we have universities, high schools and training facilities in over 20 countries.

When you go through this issue you will be acquainted with many parts of the activities of IBSSA.

I believe you agree with me that the 10 years activities and work of IBSSA were very successful. IBSSA today is the world Nr.1 security organisation. An NGO with worldwide respect.

Leaders of IBSSA are presidents of states, members of royal families, world famous experts, Knights of Malta and other orders, high-ranking church leaders of different religions, presidents and high officers of other international federations and prestigious companies, high ranked officers of police, army and law enforcement.

To reach the fantastic results was only possible with a very professional team.

The IBSSA story

By George Popper

In 1989 the world changed by the collapsing of the Communist Empire. Many new countries with different level of democratization were founded in Europe and Asia. All of those faced many new problems from which privatization and security are common. As a result of natural development private security companies were founded. One of the leading countries of the changes is Hungary with its 10 million population and about 3000 security companies.

In 1990 some Hungarian Jiu-Jitsu and Karate sportsmen founded the “Testőr Nemzetközi Biztonságügyi Kft” (Bodyguard International Security Service Ltd. Co.). The company was a Canadian-Hungarian Joint venture with the presidency of H.R.H. Prince Adan CZARTORYSKI BORBON.

The company was growing very dynamic and 4 years later it already had over 1000 workers and became one of the leading security companies of Hungary. International relations were also more and more active. A delegation of the Romanian National Protguard Company visited Hungary and an agreement of cooperation was signed with “Testőr”. Many other contacts were established with German, Israeli and other companies.

During an international meeting on the cooperation in 1994 the idea was born to join the Official International Federation of Private Security Field, but soon it was discovered that however there are numerous companies who organise international fairs, security exhibitions and conferences - an independent international federation for the security profession does not exist. Many questions were raised for which there was no answer at that time, for instance: Which are the officially recognized professions? At which level should a security worker be hired? What are the requirements to become a security agent, security guard, an international bodyguard or a security director? How and where you can get that kind of education and where will it be accepted? How can a security guard or a bodyguard prove his education level abroad? What kind of internationally recognized ID exists for international bodyguards? Working abroad: how can a bodyguard prove that he is working? Etc.

Of course hundreds of questions were unanswered and it was clear that because of the legislative differences among the various countries complications might occur, the necessity for cooperation, coordination and to elaborate general standards was the reality.

This was the moment when the decision was done to set up such an organisation.

7th April 1994, the founding Congress was held in Budapest / HUNGARY, where 14 representatives from 8 countries (Egypt, France, Germany, Great Britain, Hungary, Spain, South Africa and the USA) decided to set up IBSSA the non-profit international federation for security. H.R.H. Prince Adan CZARTORYSKI BORBON was elected as president for a 5-year period.

Sportsy enthusiasm of laymen vs. real expertise in security issues

Nobody having a clear recollection of the last 10-year history of development and quality-centric transformation of IBSSA would doubt the proficiency of the organization. In the early years, I met police experts whose smile reflected their dubiety concerning the Association's goals and its professional capabilities. After all, they encountered an NGO that tried to solve problems related to personal and property security, relying on civil resources. True, they were civil people, however, most of them returned to civil life after having absorbed a solid inventory of professional expertise as former members of the regular staff of security agencies.

During the first years of operations, sheer force and sporty attitudes dominated. It was a natural consequence of the background acquired by each member of the Hungarian senior executives of the organization in one or several branches of martial arts and the functions they had discharged in various national and international organizations of a given branch of sport. In addition to that heritage, the importance of professional work and the number of professionals of protection of people and property grew quite substantially. The members of the Hungarian Board and foreign management of IBSSA have accumulated firm expertise and experience in this trade. A click on personal data of some senior executives shown in various web-sites clearly highlights that a multitude of criminal prosecution experts, lawyers, engineers and other people of extensive qualifications have lent their specific knowledge to contribute to IBSSA's success. Undoubtedly, also their work contributed to the fact that an ever growing number of our organizations obtained an ISO certificate.

The same statement applies also to the various training courses where physical power is associated with well-balanced professional thinking. The names of many world-famous trainers have been mentioned with much respect, both in Europe and overseas. For example, leading trainers of one of the world's most acknowledged universities specializing in military self-defense have visited the international further training camps organized by IBSSA in different countries. Since last summer, a special SAS trainer, a former commander of a special task force joined us; a motion-picture produced to perpetuate his activities has been shown by local TV-channels in many countries. I think that having won nine gold medals during situ-ational shooting competitions of sportsmen delegated by ministries of interior is the best reference one can offer. In addition, the educational activities of many other celebrities guarantee the best possible quality of training.

In addition to other factors, the quality of our professional activities has been acknowledged by the presence of the IBSSA members and their active participation in the different international professional organizations. The diversity of their activities is reflected by their presence in various forums of the United Nations and their participation in the development and implementation of local programs designed in several countries to enhance the safety and security of civil population. Experts coming from different countries have exchanged their experience and contributed to the reinforcement of cross-boundary relationships of professionals. This is true to both the actual and honorary members and the patrons of IBSSA. Existing and former heads of states, ministers and other respected celebrities sponsor and support the quality of work performed in this organization.

Both we ourselves and the staff members of all ranks are interested in establishing security. It is just the reinforcement of the civil organizations which guarantees that no detail will sink into oblivion. NGOs can solve details and problems beyond the capacity of the responsible public organizations. Each day, members of IBSSA join the doing of routine work, in more than 100 countries. Training of citizens in acquiring the knacks of self-defense, efficient reduction of the number of stolen cars, protection of safety and security of homes: these are only a few examples that illustrate the multitude of tasks met by the members while meeting their classical tasks, i.e. the protection of people and property.

Honourable and fatiguing duty

There are body-guards of great reputation established in both Europe and the Americas. One of them, Attila Farkas has assumed, for some 15 years, responsibility for the protection of celebrities of world fame. Due to his proven reliability, his business card can be found in the wallet of every US film actor deliberating a visit to Central European countries. He dislikes being photographed for publicity purposes however his private album is swollen with the pictures of celebrities he once served. In addition to a private letter written to acknowledge his performance, we present a picture to demonstrate the difficulties any body-guard will certainly encounter. In Belfast, a disabled girl deserved the right to receive her diploma from the internationally acknowledged body-guard, in the presence of the Mayor of the town.

Counter terrorism

The developments and the process that the US army and the coalition countries have to deal with, all together combined with Al- Kaida's terror development in the western world, is obliging all those factors to pay more attention, involvement and professional actions in the fields of combat activities.

Recently, the Israeli College For Security & Investigations (ICSI) had received requests from several factors, to formulate a professional training concept for those who are involved in the security field in order to fulfil the need of getting acquaintance with the issue of Terrorism prevention and of gathering instructions and behaviour regulations in cases of suicide terror events.

ICSI has decided to use the professional abilities and the experience, which grew bigger over the years, especially as the College located in Israel, which fights terrorism for many years.

The lecturers and experts staff of ICSI had formulated a unique professional training program, which focuses on suicide bombers behaviour norms, suspicions signals, which can be recognized and on gathering the professional techniques and skills which are necessary for dealing with suicide terrorists.

In addition, ICSI had compiled an emergency regulation for times of security events dealing with terrorism threats and suicide terrorism.

We would like to inform all IBSSA members about the option of having a professional training, which will be executed by ICSI's top lecturers during 3 days of seminar.

Here are the main subjects of the program:

- Introduction to the veterans of Afghanistan
- Justifying suicide bomber terrorist attacks
- Recruitment process and the suicide bomber terrorist
- Training suicide bombers for their "godly task"
- Modus operandi of the suicide bomber
- Technical aspects of explosive devices carried on the suicide bomber's body
- Technical aspects and characteristics of a car bomb
- Effects of an explosion in a closed space and in an open space
- Order of actions required to thwart a suicide bomber terrorist attack
- Handling an armed suicide bomber terrorist

Even more chances for competition is needed

Shooters put their thoughts into these words because of the scarcity of opportunities when and where people working in the field of civil protection of human life and property can amicably measure swords with each other in the frame of a contest. This is the reason why IBSSA's rifle-corps organizes shooting competitions, inviting regular members of police, army and militia and the members of the Guards of the Parliament. Each participant considers taking scalps of either fellow-shooter a point of honor.

Of course, anyone can participate in both the contests and the preliminary training programs because IBSSA wants to assist the participants in gathering know-how and experience from the most diverse areas of their professional life. To this end, also the trainers and instructors represent the most different trades and professions.

Center for Narcotics Information Support

The organization's fundamental objective includes the fight against the use of drugs, containment of drug induced criminality and the reduction of drug consumption. The scope of the organization's mission includes supply of information to the various law enforcement organizations (incl. anti-drug services, crime prevention agencies) and provision of accurate and updated information to the respective professional communities. In addition, the scope of mission comprises support to prevention of drug abuse (including the related research, development, educational and training activities), development of methodologies and anti-drug strategies and the manufacture of assets needed to implement the above tasks. Also providing support to the enhancement of safety and security of public transport (with particular regard to the safety and security of civil aviation) belong to the scope of CNIS's activities.

In accordance with the Hungarian and international anti-drug strategies, the Center for Narcotics Information Support (CNIS) intends to meet its anti-drug responsibilities by reducing both the supply of and demand for drugs. We have launched our programs in the neighboring Central and Eastern European countries; the first results have been achieved in Romania, the Slovak Republic, Austria and Moldavia.

We co-operate with the Central and Eastern European countries in the joint management with the common problems and in repelling any drug-abuse phenomenon. Our ideology focuses on heralding advantages of the pursuit of sports and the useful options of leisure-time activities, in contrast to the detrimental consequences of drug-abuse.

One of the Center's key missions is to build a bridge between the civil defense organizations and the law enforcement agencies furthermore to alleviate any tension or difference of opinions that can evolve. It should be highlighted that the law enforcement agencies' primary intention is to reduce the supply of drugs, in contrast to the NGOs which try to hold back the rate of growth of demand for drugs, however, the success of the two sides is strongly interrelated. The key objective implies coordinated co-operation of the organizations concerned and finding common solutions to the problems and difficulties.

CNIS develops strategies geared to constrain the network of drug distribution. The operator and security firms, the law enforcement agencies and the NGOs must assume unconditional commitment and coordinate their efforts for the success of these strategies.

The Center and its partners are able to conduct informative and training programs to contribute to restraining of the drug-abuse phenomena and to the interactive association of strategies related to the persecution of criminal offenses and to the reduction or prevention of any related harm and detriment.

Of course, achievement of the above explained goals requires the development of anti-drug strategies at the level of companies and organizations; the CNIS experts shall render assistance to designing such methodology. Special emphasis should be laid on our participation in large-scale events normally characterized by frequent and intensive presence of drugs. We can not overemphasize the importance of co-operation among the NGOs and the law enforcement agencies and the enforcement of professional actions against persons being under the influence of drugs.

Another goal set by Center for Narcotics Information Support is aimed at equipping the anti-drug agencies' experts with special devices, including equipment that can directly assist the experts in recognizing any sign indicative of the presence of drugs and in identifying persons already addicted to drugs.

The Center acts as a direct representative of the Anti-Drug department of IBSSA NPD, in close relation with the Program of Safe Entertainment Facilities. We participate in the training of companies responsible for civil security and provide professional support to them.

In 2002, we established formal relationship with the International Training Center of the Ministry of Interior. CNIS has maintained continuous relations with the International Narcotic Enforcement Officers' Association (INEOA) that lays a special emphasis on the reduction of demand for drugs, within the complex set of anti-drug activities.

The Center for Narcotics Information Support appointed "regional representatives" in several counties of Hungary. These persons are expected to become soon active members of the local anti-drug committees responsible for maintaining the law and order in the respective region's places of entertainment, analyzing corporate anti-drug strategies and other key areas of fight against the use of narcotic substances.

CMX an EMX Introduction

Global Mercantile eXchange, LLC (GMXchange) is a member of the GMX group, Inc with its registered office in Chicago. And together with GMX Trading they comprises a trade group that is specialized in a global commodities trade, especially energy and industrial metals trade.

GMXchange is a fully electronic commodity exchange that conducts business in United States of America. The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) licenses it. In 2005 The Global Mercantile Exchange joined with the European Mercantile Exchange (EMXchange) whose registered office is in Bratislava (Slovakia). Now GMXchange and EMXchange members and clients have an access to the exchange from all over the world. This is possible through the internet and a highly sophisticated electronic commercial platform. This electronic platform was developed together with the Chicago Exchange. Both exchanges are partners of The Clearing Corporation, Chicago, IL, USA. Thanks to the technology of the Extensible Clearing System (ECS) and a Global technology link all transactions are settled and guaranteed just through The Clearing Corporation.

Due to interconnection of those exchange trades the commodities and contracts offer is extended to all interested parties. Today we can trade through the GMXchange and EMXchange with the basic industrial metals, especially with copper and aluminium and also precious metals – palladium and platinum. The offer is also extended within the energy commodities such as crude oil and LNG. Electrical energy will also be offered soon. As one of the few world exchanges EMX offers a contract for the building lumber and some other wooden products. GMX also deals extensively in steel futures. Implementation of such dealing was not successful in any other exchange until now.

The CMX Graddo and GMX Trading provide full transport and logistical services of all traded commodities. They have their offices in Moscow, Prague, Lisbon, London, Dubai and Chicago and are preparing to open offices in China and India.

The Clients who are interested in placing their offer or request to a section of physical supplies (spot, forward) can use the services of the exchange broker who is a member of the exchange or they can themselves become exchange members. Member's conditions are presented in the exchange rules and exchange statute. In the case of physical supplies, as mentioned above, the settlement is provided through The Clearing Corporation clearing center in Chicago where both exchanges have high guarantee funds and both seller and buyer are after the exchange trade conclusion and confirmation free of risks.

The big companies as well as banks and brokers and physical entities as well as small investors can speculate with financial products with high liquidity in a section of commodity derivatives (futures, options) that are automatically financially settled through the TCC.

GMXchange as a Futures Industry Association (FIA) member offers fourteen OTC contracts for aluminium and its alloys in the way of forwards and with financial settlement. Then it has spot and forward contracts for palladium, platinum and copper.

EMXchange is licensed by the European Union to provide the commodity exchange that enables her realization of all types of terminal trades including futures and options. Today the EMXchange offers spot contracts for building lumber, crude oil in Dubai, Liquid Natural Gas (LNG), rolled metal plates and steel ingots. Soon we also open a new separate section with electric energy where both forwards and futures on electric energy will be offered.

ePolice Strategy - Bit by bit against crime!

New initiative and proposal for governments for efficient crime prevention from IBSSA named eVIS (Electronic Vehicle Identification System) launched on „ITS in Europe" Congress & Exhibition in Budapest between 24th-26th of May, 2004

Introduction

The expansion of the terrorism, the international (vehicle) crime, the increasing economical influence of the underworld is forcing the protection from the democratic systems. In the new member state of the expanding EU, in Hungary, the collected and saved experiences in the crime-prevention (vehicles and documents) might be utilized to achieve the common protection's success. By the support of IBSSA Technical Department and Vehicle Protection Department IBSSA International Bodyguard & Security Services

Due to the high international interest, the head of the Hungarian delegation, Dr. András Czapáry-Martincsevics, gave a lecture about the same subject in Palermo, during the last session of the International Parliament for Safety and Peace.

Association sets up a new initiative and proposal for governments to make efficient steps for crime prevention. The fancy name of the initiative „Bit by bit against crime!" explaining addressing and meaning the eVIS Project is an informatics based integrated solution following and supporting the main European Union related development initiatives especially the EVI project means and realizes an ePolice Strategy element. IBSSA as an international security service related organization represented in 100's of countries efficiently can integrate the experiences and knowledge of its national members and it can result clear and efficient answers against crime to protect the transportation and the safety of citizens. The eVIS Project (Electronic Vehicle Identification System) has been launched and exhibited successfully between 24th-26th of May, 2004 in Budapest at the Congress & Exhibition „ITS in Europe" on the IBSSA booth. The project-leader is IBSSA eVIS Project Guiding Board and the Managing Coordinator is RAMSYS Inc. (please find details below). IBSSA delegates will participate on the next „International Parliament for Safety and Peace" in Palermo on 25-26 September, 2004 so the new initiative and proposal will be explained and shown at this important event. It is also planned to make a practical demonstration in Brussel before the end of 2004 supported by ERTICO.

Please find attached (it can be downloaded) the slight show about the eVIS Project and the basic descriptions in .rtf format. If you have any question please contact us.

Task

The vehicle-crime's task is to achieve money, which money eventually might finance the terrorism. The task of the vehicle- and document crime is the sales of the stolen vehicles of to achieve illegal tasks. (Escape, forbidden line-crossing, clandestine matters...). One of the tasks is to hinder the criminals in the achievement of their tasks by continuously developing, new solutions and to eliminate illegal money laundry.

Solution: „If he can't sell it, he won't steal it".

The „e-police" is technically suitable to the electronic identification of all vehicles, it can be operated in the EU, and it is in accordance with any public authority's user demand. It can be connected to the existing architectures of high levels, to technological and administration systems. The population's general feeling will be changed; their quietness (terrorism) and property- safety (vehicles) will be increased. The system enables – without language obstacles- the quick and efficient public road and border control of the vehicles and documents, and it makes the border registration automatically.

The electronic system is suited for the individual check (non- destructive check) of vehicles and documents, in case of real data, it is able to issue chip- matrices ensuring the vehicles' identification:

- It belongs of a protected and closed test station (finger prints and card), (computer, peripheries, testing tools, experts' programs), of a telecommunication network connecting the test stations, compatible with high level centers, of technological rules controlling the operation.

- Each vehicle should be identified, included also the vehicles passing the territory of Europe. The matrices glued on the windscreen, to be removed exclusively with the damage of the chip are weather proof, these are operable 10 years at least, the recorded data can be read with table and mobile phones (chip phone). The readers are protected, bounded to the given person; the data content of the chip can not be changed. The structure ensures the chip- legitimization possibility for the different authorities. (Sales, technical validity, etc.).

The security of information

The Hungarian IT Security Section of IBSSA was established in late 2000. The Board of IBSSA requested the Electronics Directorate of the Electronic, Logistical and Property Management Inc. of the Ministry of Defense (HM EI Inc.) to establish and manage the activities of the organization. HM EI Inc. is a member of IBSSA.

The new Section is expected to meet the following tasks:

- creation of a forum, to provide IBSSA members with an opportunity to get information regarding the security of IT operations and the variety of the available products and normative standards,
- provision of training, consulting and exchange of experiences, in order to facilitate implementation of the objectives,
- in agreement with the Board of IBSSA, coordination of the Section's international activities.

The Hungarian IT Security Section of IBSSA has considered the following issues a part of its tasks:

- in order to achieve its goals, the generally accepted international set of IT security requirements should, primarily, be naturalized and made accessible in the form of a national database or by other ways and means,
- a database should be created to disseminate the variety of IT security related norms, standards and products already available in the domestic and international market environment and considered by the Section a knowledge of importance and worthy of attention,
- methodologies should be recommended to support IT security related tests, both general ones and others tailored to members of IBSSA,
- organizational units tailored to the training and consultancy systems to be organized by the Hungarian IT Security Section of IBSSA should be established. These units shall receive professional support needed to implement their respective mission by means of relying on marketing opportunities provided to information experts and security companies,
- the Board of IBSSA should facilitate international coordination of the respective activities.

Mrs. Nagy Dr. Maria SZILVÁSI, director of HM EI Inc.'s Electronics Directorate chairs the IT Security Section of IBSSA.

During the Section's establishment, the organizers made efforts to provide, in addition to members of IBSSA, also the experts of HM EI Inc. with an opportunity to contribute to the implementation of the organization's objectives. An Information Protection and Security Division set up within the organization of HM EI Inc.'s Electronics Directorate has carried out practical tasks and manufacturing activities, in addition to performing theoretical/scientific research. The Division's experts of great attainments and rich professional experience render assistance to the Section in the following fields and aspects:

- the Section should be able to offer efficient support to members of IBSSA regarding information technology and other issues related to security of information,
- presentations be held under the Section's auspices on issues related to security of information and similar subjects.

Aspiration of this sort is reflected in the Rules of Organization and Operations of the Hungarian IT Security Section of IBSSA. This set of rules permits that both individuals and companies and interest groups assume membership in the Section.

Since the date of its foundation, both Miklós SZALAY, CEO of HM EI Inc. and the Chamber of Personal and Property Protection Agencies and Private Detectives have taken great interest in observing the Section's activities. The management of the Hungarian Division of IBSSA coordinates the Section's international activities. IBSSA decided to put the Section and its operations on its web-site.

According to a goal set by the Presidium of the Section, IBSSA members should join in increasing numbers, in order to improve the efficiency of their activities, using the information acquired as a result of joint efforts.

The management of the Section has recognized the importance of expanding the scope of the Section's activities because the classical term of IT security covers, in the current situation, a definition which is narrower than the definition of security of information. The Management System of Information Security (based on the respective ISO standard) gave a new impulse to such expansion aspirations.

The Section organizes regular (monthly) meetings and presentations for the IBSSA members on subjects like security of information and logistical information. Also, the concept of digital signature and its expected introduction in Hungary was discussed at length. The audience listened with much enthusiasm to presentations concerning the world web and opportunities for the use of various information services.

The Electronic Directorate of HM EI Inc. holds conferences and presentations several times a year. Those events have been supplemented by exhibitions arranged to demonstrate various explanatory exhibits.

The conference held during the days of "SECUREX" (International Trade Exhibition of Labor Safety and Security Protection) has become a traditional event where most of the presentations discuss the subject of security of information. Also the members of the Section participate in such events and hold presentations (e.g. “Protection of data in wide area network IT systems” or “Personal security issues related to the creation and management of and access to data”). Likewise, the audience took a lively interest in listening to other presentations (“Security of data and information” and “Security of information in business”).

A conference organized by HM EI Inc. under the auspices of the Hungarian Section of IBSSA in autumn of 2003 (“Common Criteria”) was considered a path-breaker event in the field of evaluation methodology (ISO/IEC 15408). The participants’ attention was focused on the possibility of implementation of security of information relying on IT resources and the application of systems of common aspects of evaluation of IT related security. This subject was discussed in accordance with the requirements then underlying Hungary’s accession to the European Union.

The Section participated in, and contributed to, various events held by IBSSA, e.g. the “SEC-tember” special international training event where we joined to a common exhibition stand to demonstrate the capabilities of a shooting simulator.

Our goal is to ensure that both the Hungarian Section of IBSSA and the Electronic Directorate of HM EI Inc and the rest of the Company’s directorates carry out their respective activities, making use of the mutual benefits derived from the two organizations’ co-operation.

Singapore – The small lion of South East Asia

First and foremost, I would like to say here that I am very proud and happy to be a member of the prestigious IBSSA and be its representative for Singapore.

As you are well aware, in South East Asia, security plays a vanguard role, especially in anti-terrorism. Recently, terrorists have caused an uproar in Asia with their threats and suicide attacks. The bombings in Bali, Indonesia took many precious lives, and since then, security has been stepped up throughout the region.

Singapore, being a financial hub where many international countries trade, takes security as its topmost priority. Personally, I hope that there will be more security agencies working closely with IBSSA to improve their security services. This is due to the fact that IBSSA provides systematic programmes to train its staff. This will come in useful in handling many difficult situations.

Mr. Stephen CHEE

Lastly, I wish IBSSA all the best in its future activities and look forward to the day it becomes a top security academy worldwide.

Urban Security

(operation and objectives of the Urban and Settlement Security Department of IBSSA)

The Urban and Settlement Security Department was established under the auspices of the International Association of Body-guard and Security Services.

The founders:

- Dr. TÓTH, Ferenc, chairman (Hungary)
- Dr. BUZATU, Constantin (Romania)
- Dr. REICZ, Lajos (Hungary).

At the time of the Department's foundation, the very term of urban security was not, as a matter of fact, known either in Hungary or the neighboring countries, despite the increasing fear, since the early nineties, of people of encountering or being subjected to criminal actions. This phenomenon can primarily be attributed to the increasing degree of violence of escalating criminality experienced in urban areas.

Let's take the case of Budapest as the most characteristic example. Nearly 20 per cent of the total population lives in the capital where 27 to 30 % of all the identified and registered criminal actions are committed. The per capita ratio of criminality in Hungary is approx. 450 to 500 criminal actions per 10,000 inhabitants, compared to the 650 to 680 cases/10,000 inhabitants recorded in Budapest, i.e. the capital has played a "leading role" in shaping the criminality statistics.

During the past period, this concept has gained an increasing ground in the domestic literature and this trend can, in addition to other factors, be attributed to the activities performed by the Urban and Settlement Security Department of IBSSA (hereafter referred to as: "Department").

As to justify the above statements, the following priorities have been chosen from the action program titled "National Strategy for Crime Prevention by the Hungarian Society":

- containment of childhood and juvenile delinquency
- improvement of urban security
- prevention of violence within families
- prevention of becoming a victim, assistance and compensation provided to victims of criminal actions
- prevention of recidivism.

Thus, the concept of urban safety and security has been phrased and, on the other hand, it has been elevated to the rank of the second most vital task.

The concept of urban security

The progress of urbanization contributed to turning the need for security an increasingly substantive factor. Today, urban citizens consider the personal and property protection guaranteed by the municipality an elementary right. Simultaneously, the concept of living in a secure and comfortable urban environment emerged, however, the memory of September 11, 2001 and the collateral risks of terrorism jeopardize the turning of that much desired vision into reality.

According to the basic concept of urban security, people have proper ground to expect the state, the local municipality and authorities that they create a safe and secure environment and take efficient actions against any plot and plan that can jeopardize or violate the citizens' right to safety and security.

The concept of urban security acknowledges the right of each individual and citizen to expect the public governance to warrant protection, in general, and personal security, in particular.

Urban security is the responsibility of several persons and organizations and, in this respect, the municipalities must assume principal role in meeting that responsibility. At the same time, urban security is a "complex product" to be delivered also by the security companies and their staff, in addition to the municipality and the police.

"In the course of organizing crime prevention actions, one should take into account also the guard duty and security firms which do exist in each member state and manufacture, sell and install technical equipment furthermore render services to contribute to the enhancement of protection provided to persons and property. They contribute to the prevention of crime and the protection of potential victims, in order to:

- preclude and thwart criminal actions and improve chances for the identification of potential offenders,
- alleviate the protected persons' fear of becoming victim of criminal actions,
- ensure the security of certain zones, equipment, buildings or individuals and, thus, assist the police in using their resources more efficiently."

The concept of urban security implies that:

the rule of law maintained within the city/settlement limits ensures the protection of both the life, health, honor, freedom and property of the citizens and the unobstructed operation of economic and social institutions, organizations and interest groups active within the territory governed by the local municipality, from any criminal action and breach of law (incl. offenses and violation of the rules set by the municipality).

Urban security is a state of conditions which:

- is established by numerous people,
- can be created by people,
- can be measured, and
- is subject to continuous changes.

The quality of activities performed by the Department is indicated by the Honorary Doctor's degree awarded by Pro-deo Universitas Patriarchal Studium Generale to Dr. Ferenc TÓTH in 2001, to acknowledge the merits of his study on the theoretical and practical aspects of urban and settlement security.

Krav Maga, Israeli system of self defense

Krav Maga means hand to hand combat (in Hebrew). The system designed and established by the late Master Imi Lichtenfeld.

The Master thoughts of the soldiers and security personals needs during their work at field. He collected techniques and principles, which by their nature built upon human intuition and natural reaction.

The basic idea is that soldiers and Security agents are not martial arts trained, and they train only for a very short and limited time. This training doesn't enable them to master a technique or a system, they need, natural reaction and mainly to build and strengthen the Spirit of Warrior. The characteristics of Krav Maga are basic punches, kicks (basically with army boots), Elbow strikes, locks and all kind of situation solving excesses, anti gun, revolver and knives moves, aggression controlling and balancing exercises. Krav Maga also deals with typical army and security forces like situations.

IBSSA General Secretary organized the first course for Basics of Krav Maga in his HQ Dojo in Israel. The first International Course was a great success with 15 participants from Hungary, Austria and Romania. The course was a very intensive one, with very Spartan daily program, sleeping in "sleeping bags", morning running, and very intense army type training program. The program includes basics of Krav Maga techniques, principles, and some lectures about crisis management, aggression balancing, the art of teaching.

The System is a modern development and realization of our present times. The System is aims to answer the need to a practical, simple way of self defense especially for the use of the Security Forces as well as citizens needs for basic self defense.

Dr. Rony Kluger served as a Krav Maga Instructor during his service in the Israeli Defense Forces, and during many years he served as an Analyzer and Expert Advisor to various official security agencies in Israel and world wide.

Dr. Kluger established and led the Martial Arts department in Israel's main Institute of Sport and Physical Education the well known "Wingate Institute", after serving the government for over 19 years, he serves today as Faculty Rector, in the Israeli College for Security and Investigation.

Dr Rony KLUGER

Naturally the System found its home within the frame of IBSSA (International Bodyguard and Security Services Association). Dr. Rony Kluger is the Chairman of the Education & Qualification department of IBSSA and responsible for the Educational and Qualification procedures of the official IBSSA courses. The Israeli System of Military Self Defense, Krav Maga courses are recognized and certified by IBSSA.

The discipline has become an integral part of all IBSSA courses.

Dr. Rony Kluger, has a very firm background in traditional Martial arts too. He is the Dean of the International Budo Academy and the Head of Karate Do International Renmei.

He is a recognized officer of the historical Dai Nippon Butokukai and certified Hachi Dan in Karate Do, and the holder of Dai Nippon Butokukai's title of Kyoshi (Teacher of Teacher's).

He also recognized as an official Shibuchō of Okinawa Goju Ryu Karate Do Kyokai, Jundokan, Dr. Kluger is one of the most Senior western student of the late MIYAZATO Eichi, Hanshi, Ju Dan.

I would like to offer to our members, our professional team to run courses, clinics and seminars in the field of Self-Defense, Krav Maga, and special program of Knife Fighting.

I am honored to accept invitation from IBSSA

Tony SCHIENA, threefold world champion of karate and honorary member of IBSSA, paid a brief visit to Hungary in 2003. He attended the International Ball of Bodyguards, met the senior executives of the international organization and quickly returned to the production of a movie just being shot. "I'll be happy to return to Budapest any time", he said to bid farewell.

"Who is this nice guy?" asked many people. A short question can be answered quickly: he is a movie actor who did not learn the knacks of karate for the sake of being invited to a casting but he is a much wanted movie actor because he is a master of karate.

Following a short retrospection, we requested IBSSA's international coordinator based in London to keep us regularly informed about Tony's success in the world of movie.

John DORA, and Tony SCHIENA

What we know about Mr. Tony SCHIENA: Traditional World Karate Champion Tony SCHIENA is famous for his reverse punch, which is reputed to have the power to snap the spine of a charging bull.

He has been appointed as an international spokesman for the Frank Dux Presents Kumite International Challenge, which is scheduled to take place in Las Vegas, Nevada and Mexico

City during late 2003. The event aims to bring together the greatest martial arts champions from ninety-different participating countries, each representing different styles in an event designed so that individual styles cannot use the event environment and rules to their unfair advantage. This is made finally possible with the advent of a patent-pending new technology that removes the risk of death or maiming.

According to Jules NASSO, the producer of the Steven Seagal film franchise, Tony SCHIENA is slated to replace Steven SEAGAL as the next martial arts film sensation. Tony is blessed with natural ability, speed, technique, timing and a total lack of fear.

Tony has been competing since the age of six and is champion of numerous karate tournaments. He was a member of the South African National Karate Team and became involved with the security industry after being asked to coach South Africa police officers in unarmed combat. He went on to enlist in the police force and became a member of its Narcotics & Armed Bureau (affiliated to Interpol) through which he kept an eye on the drug trade and illegal smuggling. Tony is a member of International Police Association. He is relocated to London in 1998 and set up First Security Solutions (FSS), which is specialised in staffing London's night life with well-skilled door supervisors, security guards and in bodyguarding royal family members, dignitaries and celebrities such as Prince. Tony SCHIENA's company now operates under the name Trafalgar Security Systems. Tony left England for New York where he became an official guest instructor of the NYPD Academy. He resumed his competition career and captained a US karate team to a second place in England and a triple gold in the World Traditional Karate Championships held in New York City.

Tony SCHIENA has sought out the best of the best in the martial arts and security industry but has yet to find satisfaction in what he has achieved.

Action Star

by John DORA

international coordinator of IBSSA

Since my last visit to Budapest and the 2004 IBSSA Congress, I've finally managed to catch-up with Tony SCHIENA. The first topic of conversation, as always, was when would we be returning to Budapest for another trip. Tony attended the 2003 IBSSA Congress and was overwhelmed by our Hungarian hospitality.

Well! It has been difficult sitting him down, as he has been really busy this past year. Martial arts wise, he returned to competition one last time, October 2003 in England. The US Karate team asked him to compete one on the Kumite team, as one of the members suffered a training injury and Tony happened to be in London preparing for a movie project. Tony responded to the invitation from the US coach with a negative answer as the year before he had an accident resulting in two broken ankles and surgery and as a result he was unable to defend his world titles. After some persuasion he gave-in to the coach's request and without training and total restriction from kicking he entered the championship. For the first time in 20 years of competing, his nose was broken. It was an inspiration to see Tony continue to fight, equalise and win his remaining fights. After the championship, Tony commented on, perhaps, his unwise decision to fight, with "in general, in the street, a wounded prey is an easy prey". Tony SCHIENA was awarded WTKO Athlete of the year, which now completes his retirement from competition.

Five weeks after the competition Tony jetted-off to film Wake of Death with Jean-Claude Van Damme. Tony and Van Damme play best friends who are gangsters that have a conflict with the Chinese Triads. Wake of Death is being premiered and released in LA in August and will be screened at Cannes this year. Tony then travelled to Venice, Italy to film Merchant of Venice with Al Pacino, Jeremy Irons and Joseph Fiennes. Tony plays the part of Leonardo. The film is period and almost concise with Shakespeare's original play.

After Merchant of Venice Tony filmed Action Star in London with Vinnie Jones. It is an action movie spoof. Tony plays an action movie star that is invited to London to be a judge at a beauty pageant. His character falls in love with the wrong girl, causing a climatic series of fights at the end.

Tony has reflected on his speedy rise to leading man, having shot four movies in eight months. He said from filming the John Irvin film Dot Kill with Armand Assante, he got noticed and just kept working. His plan is now to take it a little slower and make the right choices. He has many offers to do an array of action martial arts movies and have declined on the offers as he does not want to be type-cast. He loves action movies and loves making them, however, he doesn't just want to make any movie.

He stated, "I'm an actor that does martial arts not a martial arts actor and I think that so far, the few movies I've done, already reflect this and therefore speak for themselves."

Tony's already completed movies will be released during this year. I hope to be reporting soon on more about our friend Tony Schiena, very soon.
